Literacy learning

Saturday, 1 August (9am - 4pm) and Sunday, 2 August (9am-12:30pm)

Seminar Room

Catholic Education Office,

37 Winton Street, Bunbury

Play is the way young children learn. So, how can they play AND learn to read and write?

This workshop will focus on authentic tasks that encourage children's development of literacy skills. Using inspirations from Reggio Emilia we will explore ways in which literacy can be explicitly and systematically embedded in routines, the environment and play experiences (both indoors and outdoors).

This workshop will build on the knowledge of participants and explore and challenge ideas about teaching and learning.

The workshop will be facilitated by Dr Marie Martin. Marie has taught children aged 18 months to 18 years and has been facilitating professional learning since 1993. Blending theory and practice in lively interactions which enable teachers to build their knowledge, skills, attitudes and values, Marie’s workshops encourage thinking, movement and laughter.

You can see summaries of some of the workshops Marie has previously facilitated at http://www.learningconversations.net/blog/Conversationsaboutlearning/Whatwehave done

The cost of the workshop is $220/weekend per participant.

Email marie.martin@learningconversations.com.au

Or call on 0409 034 692

If you have any questions or to book your place.